"A Meticulous To Detail African Hunter"

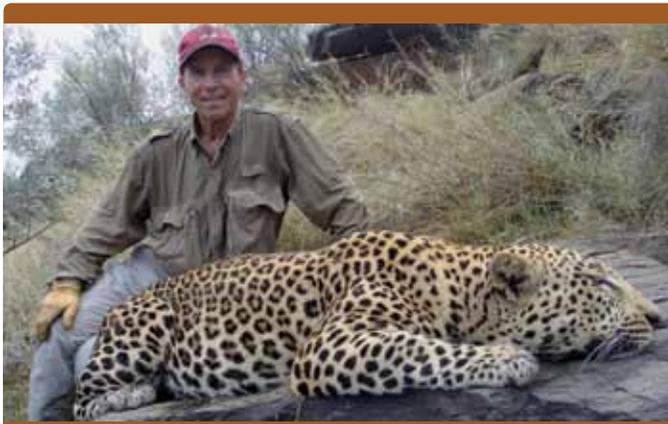

My first safari with Dirk was in 2005. Since I was hunting alone we were free to move around Namibia and experience all the wonders of that beautiful country. We covered 2200 miles. To say this was a safari of a lifetime can only be recognized by the variety of game encountered and taken.

In the 17 days there I harvested 18 animals. Within a two day period in the northern portion of the country I managed to take a huge Cape Eland Bull which weighed 2000lbs, a leopard that very same evening and several days later a Cheetah on the run. I have always loved Kudu hunting so Namibia is right up there with the best places in the world to take large species.

Therein lies the proof of why his fellow professional hunters awarded him the International Professional Hunter of the World Award in 2008. More importantly he is a gentleman, has an impeccable reputation, great equipment, and good assistants.....

If you want to hunt Namibia I can think of none better than Dirk de Bod. Whether it is finding the hunter the opportunity at a record book trophy or arranging a fun side trip for the non-hunting companion he leaves nothing to chance. He will make every effort to produce the results that you are looking for on your safari. And most of all, these efforts will allow the hunter to relax and have fun, the way safaris are meant to be. I have been to Namibia multiple times and his safaris rate at the top of my African adventures.

No other PH works harder behind the scenes to make your adventure flawless. On the day we harvested this exceptional hartebeest, we glassed many other gold medal shooters before we put a stalk on this one. Dirk's ability to field judge and his drive for perfection allowed us to hold out for this exceptional representation of the species.
